Aims and Principles: The course investigates the various strategies of academic writing, in order to help students find their individual approach to conducting meaningful research through text. By seeking out well-grounded practices from art criticism, literary theory, copywriting and other zones of textuality, we aim to discover a wide range of verbal possibilities, subverting the pre-programmed, automatic choices inherent to “safely played” academic writing. During the lessons, we will search for creative responses to the situation when somebody from the art world has to verbalise their thoughts and intuitions. Apart from developing practical writing skills, we examine the creative possibilities of the reader. We will rely on close-reading as a self-reflective tool. By alluding to a wide range of case studies, we will collectively expand our textual perspectives in the domain of contemporary arts. During the course I will be glad to help you in overcoming any possible language barriers. Whatever the level of your English knowledge might be at the moment, we will find a way to work together!
Intended learning outcomes (professional and transitive competencies): Knowledge: Gaining new theoretical, practical and artistic perspectives on different forms of academic writing. Skills: Art writing, creative writing, critical thinking and collaborative skills in text-based interactions. Critical editing skills (creative criticality, critical creativity). Attitudes/attributes: A self-reflective approach to crafting sentences and paragraphs. An open attitude to creating new meanings through text. Close reading as a way to assure the precise expression of ideas. Charting new, personally relevant territories of thought and emotion. Autonomy and Responsibility: Understanding writing as a collective platform for collaboration and engagement. Developing skills in writing to let your personal voice contribute to local and global discourses. Helping you in gaining a more grounded, personal connection to the English language in art-related topics. Establishing our common notions together.
